

Should Victoria Buy Bus System?

By E. O. MARRION

Greater Victoria Inter-municipal committee decided yesterday to inquire into the cost of a study to indicate the desirability of otherwise of a public-owned transit system for the

The decision came after hearing that the B.C. Electric would sell its whole bus system at less than "book value."

It also decided to protest against the B.C. Electric Company bypassing the Greater Victoria municipalities in its application to the Public Utilities Commission for a general increase in bus fares. (See Page 13 for Saanich decision.)

The second decision possibly could result in a delay in the PUC hearings in Victoria on the company's application, now scheduled for Sept. 8.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt

told the committee that instead of applying directly to the PUC for the fare increase, the company should have negotiated first with the municipal councils under the terms of the transit franchise bylaws.

That was his belief the councils would hear and be able to assess the company's arguments, and receive full information, before the PUC hearing.

The committee's decisions came toward the end of a 2½-hour meeting called primarily to discuss a suggestion from the PUC that the municipalities might want to subsidize the B.C.E.'s unprofitable transit operations by foregoing or reducing the franchise payments made by the company.

The municipal leaders decided they didn't want to. Also entering into the discussion from time to time was the fact that two Vancouver men, backed by British interests, are considering buying the entire B.C. Electric transit system in Victoria and on the Mainland.

W. C. Mearns, vice-president of B.C. Electric, said, however, that it was unfortunate that the possible sale had come up at this time, because it gave the impression that it and the fare-increase application were mixed up together.

Mr. Mearns and other company officials attended the first part of the meeting to explain the company's position.

Transit manager H. R. Halls said the company's estimated the higher fares would increase revenue in Greater Victoria by $208,000 a year, which would do little more than offset the most recent increase in wages and would leave the system still in the red. Loss in 1957, he said, was $478,000. (The company's transit losses are made up from electricity revenue.)

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich asked Mr. Mearns if the B.C.E. would seek smaller increases in fares if franchise payments (amounting to about $40,000 a year in Greater Vic-

Agreement Nears

B.C., Ottawa To Split Cost Of Sons' Exit

Announcement is expected very shortly of a federal government agreement with British Columbia to share costs of sending the long-troublesome Sons of Freedom Doukhobors to Russia, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

Justice Minister Fulton in Ottawa, said he mailed a "revised proposal" to B.C. Attorney General Robert Bennett Monday on the situation.

He said he thinks agreement was reached on the problem in a Saturday long-distance telephone conversation he had with Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Fulton declined to make public what the agreement will be, but it was learned that the two governments will split costs of sending the Sons of Freedom to Russia.

It is understood one federal condition attached to such financial assistance to the Doukhobor sect would be Freedomite agreement to relinquish all rights of Canadian citizenship. This would ensure that they did not return to Canada once they left.

In the discussions about the matter, which have gone on for some weeks, the B.C. government is understood to have asked that the federal government take over full responsibility for the Sons of Freedom, who have been blamed for many terrorist acts in B.C. in recent weeks and over the years.

The federal government declined, however, to accede to this provincial request.

Blood from a Stone!

You can get blood from a stone—that's just what nurse Mrs. Mary Stobart did yesterday when she took a pint from Mrs. K. D. Stone, who did her part to help Victoria's all-out mayor's blood drive which officially opens today. Clinics are at Red Cross House, 1046

Fort, from 1.30 to 4.30 and 7 to 9.30 p.m. and the same hours tomorrow. Mayor Scurrah says the need is desperate and has made a personal appeal to Greater Victorians to donate a 'pint of blood each. See page 13.—(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

Hailed Passers-By Find Grisly Scene

Mrs. Alice Louella Kerr, a 54-year-old Pender Island housewife, was charged with murder last night after her husband Albert was found shot to death in their seven-room frame house near Hope Bay on North Pender Island.

After an intensive all-day investigation at the murder scene on North Pender Island, RCMP brought Mrs. Kerr by police launch to Victoria and placed her under guard in the city jail. She is expected to be formally charged this morning.

Kerr, 56, the island's electrician, who had lived on North Pender Island for four years, was found shortly before 8 a.m. yesterday lying dead only in his shorts on the bedroom floor, a bullet wound in his head. He had apparently been dead for some time.

KILLED BY BULLET

The First World War veteran was killed by a bullet from a heavy-calibre carbine in the house that adjoins the island's cemetery.

Islanders said they "liked" Albert fine, but found his wife Alice a withdrawn woman, who took no part in social activities.

They said they had seen them "argue about this and that."

PHONE REMOVED

Mrs. Virginia Shirley told The Daily Colonist: "I knew Mr. Kerr very well. They had their telephone taken out because she would phone people up in the middle of the night."

The family had come to the island from Vancouver and although there is no immediate family known it is reported Mrs. Kerr has relations in Penticton.

"DIDN'T GET UP"

The dyed-blond grey-haired housewife is reported to have at first told neighbors she heard a shot about 11 p.m. but she thought her husband was just shooting at something, and didn't bother getting up.

Two men, one driving in in a "terrific rush," were flagged down at 7.50 a.m. by Mrs. Kerr. She was standing 200 feet from her house, waving frantically.

FOUND BODY

Nick Liberto, logger and real estate man, and Ray Brackett, unemployed logger, entered the house.

They found Kerr lying in a bedroom. He had been dead for some time.

Mr. Liberto left to phone the RCMP on Salt Spring Island, then returned to wait with Mr. Brackett for two hours for their arrival.

WENT TO BED

Mrs. Kerr went into her bedroom and lay down. The Kerrs had separate bedrooms.

Mr. Liberto, first to be stopped by her, said she was mumbling and incoherent. Mr. Brackett confirmed this.

She did say, though, that "something had happened, and she thought he was dead," Mr. Liberto said.

Mr. Brackett, who covered the body with a blanket, said he noticed no signs of a struggle or of any great wounds. Mr. Liberto said he was too disturbed to notice much of anything.

Mr. Liberto's story was: WAVING FRANTICALLY

He was rushing to catch the ferry Cy Peck, leaving for Swartz Bay at 8 a.m., and had 10 minutes to cover two miles. Mrs. Kerr was standing 200 feet out from the house, "waving frantically."

He drove into her driveway and she said "something had happened."

SAW RIGHT AWAY

"I thought there might have been an accident, or some illness. Ray Brackett came along and I beckoned to him, thinking I might need help getting Kerr to a doctor."

"But when I went in I saw right away he was dead. He had been dead for some time."

"She just mumbled on and on... she was sorry he was dead."

FLABBERGASTED

"I can't remember just what she said... I was flabbergasted and dumbfounded. After I phoned the police I just went out and waited on the verandah, and she went in and laid down. I just saw that she kept in the bedroom."

Ray Brackett was heading for the school to do some odd jobs, carpentry, with Frank Prior, a retired man. Mr. Prior went on to the job.

"I couldn't get anything much out of her. She just said something had happened," he reported.

NURSES ARRIVE

"We were there for a couple of hours until the police came in the meantime two nurses, Mrs. H. C. Scott and Miss Alice Auchterlonie, came there."

"I talked to Mrs. Kerr but she didn't make much sense."

The house is jointly owned by brothers Leslie and Elmer Bowerman.

JUST PAINTED

Leslie said the house, adjoining the cemetery, had been the couple's home for "four or five months" and had just been painted by Mr. Kerr.

Other than that, it had not been well kept, he said. But he would not comment whether or not they had been good tenants.

The house is about 35 years old, a two-storey affair of frame construction and seven rooms.

WELL KNOWN

Mr. Kerr, electrician for Pender Island, was well liked by nearly everyone. Mr. Bowerman, Mr. Brackett and Mr. Liberto all said.

Mr. Kerr was secretary of the local branch of the Canadian Legion on the island, which has a population of some 350 farmers, loggers and retired people.

Third Quint Weds

MONTREAL (CP)—Marie Dionne, one of the four surviving quintuplets, was secretly married here early Monday to Florent Houle, 33-year-old court clerk, it was disclosed Monday night.

Two altar boys were reported the only witnesses to the ceremony in the Chapel du Sacre Coeur in Notre Dame Roman Catholic Church.

George Rouse of nearby Pointe aux Trembles, Mr. Houle's brother-in-law, said Monday night he knew little about the wedding.

"The ceremony was supposed to have been last Friday," Mr. Rouse said.

"But somehow the news got around and Florent postponed it. He didn't want it to be a circus."

"My wife and I were invited, but we couldn't go today. We would have gone Friday."

Marie—who once studied to be a nun—is the third of the quintuplets to be wed.

The Dionne parents were unavailable for comment at their Callander, Ont., home.

Red Guns Blast Islands

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Chinese Communist artillery bombarded two of the Nationalist Quemoy offshore islands in the battle-alerted Formosa Strait area, the Nationalist government said yesterday.

At the same time Communists were reported clearing the offshore waters of fishing boats in a possible move to open the sea lanes for a Red thrust at the Nationalist-held islands.

In Washington, the State Department publicly reaffirmed its decision not to recognize Red China yesterday, asserting that such action would be "of material assistance" to Communist attempts to dominate Asia.

Policy statement was issued on the eve of an expected new Soviet drive to seat the Peking regime in the United Nations.

Reds Gaining UN Support

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said yesterday that Russia called a special session of the United Nations General Assembly on the Mid-East because President Eisenhower's terms for a summit meeting would have produced nothing but a "fruitless waste of time."

The latest Khrushchev note was made public in Moscow and London as delegates of the 81 member nations converged on New York for an emergency General Assembly session called in response to demands from both the United States and Russia.

In Washington, the president and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles worked together for more than two hours on the U.S. proposals to be put before the special assembly session.

The President had called for applying UN Security Council rules to any top-level East-West talks.

This, Khrushchev said in a new letter delivered to British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, would have produced no concrete results, because of the present makeup and "shortcomings" of the council.

The new Soviet communication came as the United States and Russia worked behind the scenes to win support for their rival positions in the Middle East.

Significant support was reported building up behind the Russian demand for a British-American troop withdrawal.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will arrive today to join Russia's Andrei Gromyko, Canada's Sidney Smith, the United Arab Republic's Mahmoud Fawzi and Lebanon's Charles Malik and other foreign ministers gathering for the assembly session.

I'll Return, Says Princess

Farewell to Canada 'My Second Home'

HALIFAX (CP)—A travel-weary Princess Margaret bade farewell to Canada Monday night, feeling "rather like Cinderella must have felt as the first terrible note of midnight struck on another entrancing occasion."

In a farewell message over a Canada-U.S. television and radio hookup, Princess Margaret called Canada a second home and promised to return.

"She said the kindness of the Canadian people has been 'truly inspiring and heartwarming' and a constant accompaniment to my journey."

"It has been my good fortune... to have seen for myself across this vast land so many of the people of Canada, and so much of the sources, both

But it was a big, glistening spiritual and material of BOAC plane that took her home to London, rather than a carriage. It was airborne just before midnight Atlantic time. The non-stop flight was expected to take 7½ hours.

She will be welcomed by the Queen Mother.

The northland offered an "inspiring challenge... to the makers of Canada in every walk of life."

The Princess said she was happy to come "when many anniversaries are taking place—British Columbia's centennial, Quebec's 350th anniversary and the anniversary in Nova Scotia of 200 years of representative government."

Canada's future possibilities "are limitless and unrivalled anywhere," she said.

Sommers Case Adjourned

H. W. Gray Won't Testify; Jury Gets Two-Week Break

By H. L. JONES
VANCOUVER (C.P.)—H. W. Gray, a lumber company executive described by the Crown as a "kingpin" in a conspiracy to pay bribes to former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, will not take the witness stand in his own defence. The case has been adjourned to Aug. 25.

His defence counsel, J. R. Nicholson, told Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson and the Assize Court jury of nine men and three women Monday that he felt it unnecessary to call Gray in view of the testimony of the others accused, including Sommers. Assistant prosecutor Stewart McMoran immediately informed the court the Crown had no rebuttal to offer. Mr. Justice Wilson, who has previously promised the jurors

Women Live in Terror

Know Murdered Girl's Friend

VANCOUVER (C.P.)—The fear that has swept the Okanagan Valley for the last week has entered the lives of two Vancouver women who said yesterday they are living in terror of the slayer of Anita Budde.

There was something funny about him," said Miss Fischer. She described him as long haired and "dirty looking."

"His hair was red and hung way down his neck," Miss Budde came here from East Germany 18 months ago.

Her two women friends are also German immigrants.

In the greatest manhunt in Okanagan history, police have sought a man since the slaying of the orchard worker and for wounding an RCMP officer.

Donald Stevens, alias John M. Morrison, 53-year-old fruit picker, has been charged with attempted murder in the shooting of the policeman. A well-known character in the valley, police describe him as a man with reddish-brown hair.

Miss Fischer said Miss Budde had stayed with her for several weeks before leaving for the Okanagan. They had often talked of the man.

Stevens was spotted walking along the road by a police patrol during the weekend, but escaped capture by fleeing into thick brush which covers the hills. Police dogs used in earlier hunts for Stevens proved useless for tracking in the dry, dusty

Hopes for Peace Talks

Seeking some basis for solution of Cyprus problems, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has invited leaders of the warring Greek and Turkish communities to meet with him today for talks on the island's future before he returns to London tonight. On his arrival yesterday, he conferred with British military chiefs and visited troops operating against the EOKA terrorist underground.

'Eskimos Ate Own Clothing Before Dying of Starvation'

OTTAWA (UPI) — Fourteen Eskimos who starved to death at Garry Lake last winter probably ate their own caribou-hide clothing in an attempt to stay alive, the member of Parliament for the Northwest Territories said Saturday.

Mervyn Hardie (L. Mackenzie River) told the Commons that autopsy reports revealed nothing but caribou hair in the stomachs of the Eskimos.

The veteran northerner said starvation was widespread among the Eskimos last winter due to a shortage of caribou. Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said his department was moving the Eskimos to areas where they could be better looked after. He also said wildlife experts were tracking the caribou in order to establish its pattern of movement.

Mr. Hardie said Canadians were being canvassed to help needy children in foreign lands when Eskimos were starving to death in the Northwest Territories.

"But if 14 people in any part of Canada other than that part which I have the honor to represent were to die of starvation, he said, "the entire country would be aroused in indignation that conditions of this kind could exist in our society at this stage of the development of our country."

A shack containing food supplies for the Eskimos at Garry Lake, 1,100 miles northwest of Winnipeg, burned down in February. The body of the Eskimo caretaker and those of the other Eskimos who came seeking food and, finding none, died of starvation, were found May 6 by an RCMP corporal.

The Liberal MP reiterated a warning made two years ago that there would be no caribou left by 1962 if they keep decreasing in numbers as they have done in the last few years.

'Racial Bias Caused Riot'

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — Union representatives of 800 Prince Rupert Fishermen and fishery workers told Justice Minister Fulton Monday that rioting in the city early Aug. 3 was the result of discrimination against the local Indian population.

The Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union sent a telegram to the justice minister supporting demands already made by two local labor organizations for a royal commission inquiry into the disturbance.

The union said the commission should investigate the "background of racial discrimination" here, with particular reference to treatment of Indians by RCMP, prejudice against Indians in industry and a "double standard" for natives and non-natives, in business.

The telegram says failure to investigate the matter fully could result in future disturbances "on a more massive scale."

"We feel that your responsibility is to see that all Canadians are given fair equal treatment and that lack of application of this Canadian concept is the basic reason for the riot," it says.

From Ottawa Mr. Fulton sent word to the Prince Rupert Labor Council that investigation of the recent riot is a matter of provincial, not federal jurisdiction.

He said that since municipalities come under provincial jurisdiction, the federal government would have no right to investigate the situation on its own.

Reducing, Drinking Don't Mix

A combination of a reducing drug and alcohol was blamed in city police court yesterday for the actions of a Vancouver woman charged with false pretences.

June Hawryluk pleaded guilty to obtaining goods valued at less than $50 from the Hudson's Bay Co. store Saturday morning.

She had used a fictitious name and address to purchase on credit $31.98 worth of cosmetics and clothing, store detective Harry Mills said.

Counsel Alan Bigelow said according to medical advice, the weight-reducing drug and alcohol together may make people do things they would not normally do.

The store was "partially to blame" for allowing a charge purchase by a person not properly identified, he added.

"I agree with you very heartily," said Magistrate A. L. Thomas. He remanded the woman to this morning for sentence.

The Transit Franchise

AS time is now proving, it is fortunate that municipalities in the Greater Victoria region included a clause in the street transit franchise that prevents its transfer without municipal assent. That means that regardless of who holds the bus franchise for urban communication in the Victoria area the resultant service must be one satisfactory to the grantors of the concession. Separate operation of urban buses, without power and electric light sales, would undoubtedly usher in higher transit fares, as no enterprise would be willing to undertake the operation on a losing basis.

While the municipalities might have to yield there, there is no reason why they should incur road upkeep obligations beyond normal so that transit operators could have a free right-of-way perpetually maintained out of civic and municipal taxes. That was the basic reason for the take-off percentage enjoyed by the franchise grantors out of bus operating revenues, the quid pro quo which was meant to balance some of the cost of road upkeep under heavy transit traffic.

As the matter stands, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are the originators of the transit concession in a position of some power. Whether local public transportation is to continue under the present franchise holders or pass to new ones, it is the municipalities' ratification which would still have the deciding voice. Without the consent of the municipalities concerned there could be no transit franchise at all, and that point takes precedence to consideration of what fares would be justifiable under given circumstances.

Mayor Percy Scurrell, for the city, has shown that Victoria understands the implication of the transfer clause in the bus franchise agreement, and its importance if there is to be a new deal. In practical terms a sale of the concession would virtually imply a new agreement all round; with give and take on both sides and effective street transit guaranteed as a result, by mutual assent.

Morons at the Beaches

NOT far from Victoria there is a secluded little bay with every natural feature to make it enjoyable for a quiet weekend picnic. It is on an island, and so is accessible only to boating people, which is one of the reasons why its beauty has never been ruined by "development." Unfortunately it is accessible also to roistering hoodlums, who nowadays are to be found among boatowners in about equal proportion to the smashers of bottles, the destroyers of peace and quiet, among car drivers.

Visitors to this little bay on Sunday were confronted with a sight to raise doubt as to the sanity of some of those who had been there before them. At one end of the bay there is a gently sloping ledge of rock, measuring several hundred square feet. Every inch of it was smothered with broken glass, so shattered that it was impossible to clear up the horrible mess. Obviously a group of hoodlums had wound up a beer-drinking party by setting up dozens of bottles on the ledge and stoning them into a murderous litter of jagged fragments.

Elsewhere along the beach there was more evidence of wilful, senseless bottle smashing. There were also razor-sharp tops cut from tin cans and left lying on the ground; and with them the filthy litter, some of it unmentionable, commonly left behind on beaches by the kind of people with whom no self-respecting pig would fraternize. Snaggle-toothed pieces of glass were imbedded just out of sight in the gravel, ready to cut to shreds the feet of children playing there. Fires had been lit, too, and appeared to have been left to burn themselves out instead of being extinguished properly.

As the population of the district increases, so does the demand for access to beaches. Moronic conduct of this sort makes it hard for those interesting themselves on behalf of all the decent people to win the sympathy of property owners adjacent to beaches which could and should be made available to the public. Only a very small percentage of the people behave like this, but they are able to ruin things for all the others. Catching them may be a difficult job for the police but shouldn't be impossible, as their haunts are known. If some of them can be caught it is up to the police to prosecute and for the courts to make such an example of the culprits that others may take warning.

The 'Big O'

SHIPS are like army regiments, they live in the minds of men. As with the soldier and his unit, so with the sailor and the vessel he serves. This is not strange. In each case the serviceman puts part of his life into either the regiment or the ship. The latter becomes the repository of the combined spirit of all those who served. In the instance of a ship, probably because of the greater intimacy of association, the vessel absorbs the flavor of her personnel and attains a character of her own.

That can be truly said of HMCS Ontario, the cruiser known so familiarly along the Victoria waterfront as the "Big O." For a decade and more she has been at the core of the naval activities of the Pacific Command. No better-known post-war RCN vessel exists, for she has shown her flag in ports of the seven seas and become the most travelled ship of the maple leaf. Now her day is about over.

Time and the changing mode of naval affairs are causing her retirement. The emphasis now is on smaller submarine chasers of one type or another, with aircraft power replacing the offensive weight of metal carried by battleships and cruisers. In a few short weeks the Ontario will either be broken up for scrap or, as many men who have served her will hope, sold for civilian use.

It was not the lot of the "Big O" to thunder her guns in battle. She came into being as the last war ended. But first as the heavyweight of the RCN's west coast fleet and later as its chief training vessel she has served the navy well. Thousands of officers and men learned the ropes aboard her. She was always a fine, trim sight, one to gladden the hearts of all who have salt in their veins. She carried the White Ensign bravely, and her retirement will leave many a pang behind. For years to come thousands of RCN personnel will think back to the time when the Ontario was their home, enriched by memories of comradeship and service on the ship that was their pride.

Interpreting the News

United Nations' to Referee

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A SPECIAL session of the United Nations General Assembly, while generally regarded as the least likely to succeed of all the proposed steps to ease tension in the Middle East, is not without hopeful aspects.

While the Western powers feel a flood of oratory will be the main result, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld is understood to be pleased that the world organization will thus continue to play a major part in an official capacity.

The Swedish diplomat on many past occasions has used the scope of his office in perhaps a broader sense than any formal worded approval by the UN members seemed to call for. And it is felt in the current situation he is likely to take steps again.

In fact he already has been proceeding along his line during the hiatus which resulted from the UN Security Council's suspension of debate to allow outside negotiations for the big-power summit conference which failed to materialize.

When the council broke off its meetings on the American-British interventions in Lebanon and Jordan the secretary-general told the members he felt free to use a vaguely worded council motion of a month and a half before to build up the small UN observer corps in Lebanon in hope of replacing the United States troops and permitting their withdrawal.

This buildup has been slow and not yet extensive but the fact it has proceeded at all with the Security Council's hands virtually tied is a tribute to Hammarskjöld's own efforts.

There were three possibilities for dealing with the Middle East situation. One was the heads of government conference which blew hot and cold at the whim of Russia's Premier Khrushchev. Second was action by the Security Council which of course was blocked—as it has been on such controversial occasions—by the Soviet veto. The third was the emergency assembly meeting.

This last step removes the menace of the veto from the discussion, since in the assembly a two-thirds majority vote prevails, but in a legal way any action approved by the assembly has only a kind of moral effect. Under the UN charter the assembly of all 81 member states can only make "recommendations" whereas the 11 member Security Council "may take such action by air, sea or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security."

The UN's action in Korea was taken under this provision, but it escaped a Soviet veto only because Russia at the time was boycotting the council sessions and refusing to vote.

During the Middle East crisis of 1956 over the British-French-Israeli affair in Egypt, however, the General Assembly had to take over because the Security Council was veto-bound. And the UN Emergency Force which has kept the peace along the Egypt-Israeli border ever since was the creation of the assembly, working through the secretary-general.

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

TALKING about poltergeists a writer in Time and Tide said recently that the division between mind and matter was much less than imagined. When mind and matter are wrapped in a human frame this division is apt to disappear.

Running a mile under four minutes is not poltergeist phenomena, although it is a ghostly pace. And undoubtedly it was the mind freed of inhibition that fashioned the current crop of record-breakers.

There are other factors, of course: the weather, the state of the track—at Dublin last week at the peak of perfection—and improved training of the body. Through the years the latter especially has undergone a transformation.

But as you know until Roger Bannister, a doctor, wedded psychology to physical condition the four-minute mile was deemed beyond human power. Yet once he put his theories into practice by breaching this time-barrier his followers have been legion.

What couldn't be done before has been duplicated 44 times since Bannister astounded the sporting world. And in the short space of four years!

The mind, quite obviously, has worked overtime with the matter.

This ghostly acceleration was foreseen. It was another doctor, Dr. Phil Edwards, himself a mile of intentional repulse, who half-a-dozen years ago suggested that some day mind and matter would get together on the track with startling results. Fusion of effort was all that was required; and apparently only once, to show the way.

Now a mile run in less than four minutes is a matter of course. Only last week the young Australian Herb Elliott broke the barrier for the eighth time, setting the "incredible" record of 3:54.5. Four other runners were on his heels, each of them also under four minutes.

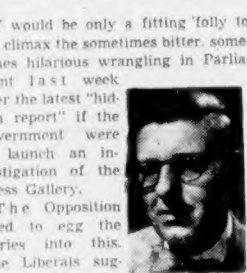

I put the word "incredible" in quotation marks because Dr. Bannister thinks runners will keep on reducing the mile record. "There is no absolute limit to this race," he says. But even allowing that the mind can make men do amazing things there must come an end sometime to superlative physical achievement.

Carried to its logical conclusion a continuance of record-breaking without stop would mean that some day a runner would run the mile in nothing flat. Even the poltergeists could scarcely do better than that.

It is an interesting poser, however. What IS the limit? Ten years ago the mile record was 4:01.4; now it is some seven seconds less. Can seven more seconds be chopped off in the next ten years? That indeed seems incredible.

Peculiarly enough, though, while mile runners have been improving their speed almost beyond belief the 100-yard sprinters have been left at the starting blocks. The record for this distance ten years ago was 9.3 seconds and it still is. Can the sprinters, emulating the milers, bring this time down to nine seconds even? Can the nine-second barrier also be breached?

Perhaps it can, when another doctor-runner harnesses psychology to the adrenal glands. And then watch poltergeist phenomena take a back seat.

Reports from Ottawa

IT would be only a fitting folly to climax the sometimes bitter, sometimes hilarious wrangling in Parliament last week over the latest "hidden report" if the government were to launch an investigation of the Press Gallery.

The Opposition tried to egg the Tories into this. The Liberals suggested action under the Official Secrets Act: "Every person who... has in his possession any official document... issued for the use of some person other than himself... is guilty of an offence."

Toronto Star reporter Mark Harrison, who obtained and published excerpts from the governments top secret "Economic Outlook for 1958," would seem to be a person within the meaning of the Official Secrets Act. But so far the government has recoiled from bringing Harrison into court—partly, perhaps, because that would be admitting that Harrison's story was true.

CCFer Hazen Argue urged the government to hale three other Press Gallery reporters before the Commons' committee on privileges.

Behind this novel suggestion was the fact that Argue was compelled by House rules to accept Trade Minister Churchill's statement that these reporters had fabricated the quotations they had attributed to him—quotations which had gotten his hands on the secret report. So, Argue suggested, let's have these reporters before the committee. Obviously Argue expected that their testimony in their defence would make it obvious to everyone that Churchill had lied in accusing them of misquotation.

In the light of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's record as a defender of freedom, including freedom of the press, it would be interesting indeed if the government were to try to use the power of the law and of the Commons to force newsmen to disclose sources of stories.

Naturally the Conservatives will not so conveniently provide the opposition with proof of those allegations of prime ministerial hypocrisy which liberally larded Liberal speeches during the debate. Nor are the Conservatives likely to go to such extremes, in the certain knowledge that they would thus thoroughly sour their relations with the parliamentary press.

Indeed, Diefenbaker already seems to be having qualms about the way he and Churchill particularly have made the Press Gallery their whipping boy, to be accused of misquotation and misinterpretation whenever its members' stories embarrass the administration. In winding up the hidden report debate, Diefenbaker said: "The press, except for slight errors and mistakes that naturally creep in, has always occupied to my way of thinking a high position in the finest traditions of this country. I have always said that."

Otherwise, the debate showed:

1. The government's forecast of economic conditions this year was more optimistic than the forecast made by the economists who prepared the report. But not even the opposition gainsaid the government's right to substitute its own judgment for that of any or all of its advisers, if it so chooses.

2. The government was embarrassed by this disclosure because it had condemned the former government for allegedly disregarding the advice of these very same economists. But embarrassment is one of the hazards of politics—and it will all be forgotten before a 1962 election.

3. The opposition, although numerically weak, can be very effective if the circumstances are favorable. The opposition won a psychological victory, which is good for its morale, and gave a salutary lesson to a cocky, over-confident government.

Dreams of Omnipotence

By GREGORY CLARK

AS a general rule, the first thing an ordinary man does on acquiring real wealth is to buy himself a hideaway, a piece of earth all to himself. Maybe it is only a couple of suburban acres on which he sets up a fine house, a little remote from the community.

Often it is a piece of country property on which, approached by screened lanes and secluded amid hazy woods and ornamental shrubbery, he erects a sort of manor house.

Part of the pleasures of wealth, also, is the purchase of a place in the wilderness, as inaccessible as possible to the vulgar throng. To be apart, alone, sequestered, must be a strong instinct in mankind, despite all the evidence that suggests man is a social animal; for, on acquiring freedom—which is power, which is money—there are mighty few of us who would not take the steps I have described.

Now, here is what is alarming me in these days of hydrogen bombs and the threat of them to man's survival. What if some powerful man, or some group of men satiated with power, were to take the next logical step and decide that they would like to have, not just a few hundred acres of private preserve, but the whole world for their private preserve? Can a man be so rich with power that he dreams of having the world to himself?

It is possible. What we must watch out for, then, are those powerful enough to possess the hydrogen bomb who are also busy discovering a way to be safe from it.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

As the traveller was leaving the little country hotel he turned suddenly to a not-too-bright-looking lad leaning against the desk.

"Quick, son," he ordered. "Run up to 604 and see if I left my briefcase. Hurry! My train leaves in a couple of minutes."

A few minutes later the boy rushed back. "Yes, sir," he panted. "It's there all right."

On the Record

Obscuring The Simple

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

IN his recent press conference Mr. Dulles gave an excellent reason for refusing to hold the "summit conference," planned for this month, in Moscow, "having in mind the recent outrages and demonstrations occurring there where great mobs attacked and defaced the American Embassy."

The same reason, however, argues against holding it in New York, where there would certainly be demonstrations and counter-demonstrations against or for the participants.

New York contains thousands of Hungarian refugees from the brutal Russian suppression of the Budapest revolt, whose feelings against Mr. Khrushchev would find public expression. In no European countries, all of which live like the toad beneath the harrows of the two great power blocs, has anti-Soviet sentiment so continually and clamorously been fanned.

And not only anti-Soviet but anti-Arab sentiment with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic as its focus. Were he to be called into the conference as a chief protagonist in the triangle drama that has developed in the Middle East, the security forces required to protect him would be enormous.

All the predictable demonstrations, reported, photographed, and filmed, would be spread throughout the world and retransmitted in the foreign press and radio—particularly in the Arab press and radio—adding to the hideous and mindless clamor that has long been obliterating any reasoned approach to Middle East and other problems.

Geneva (as I write) seems the most likely site. Certainly the conference should be held in a small neutral country whose relations with both power blocs are satisfactory to its people. This column would have suggested Vienna, for the relaxing atmosphere of a very beautiful city and country, still in its monuments and palaces an imperial capital, and one that has survived in beauty, grace and even prosperity, the loss of empire!

However, the site, if it be not in a tumultuous great power metropolis, is secondary to the object of the meeting. In reading the State Department's account of Mr. Dulles' press conference, it was clear that the secretary of state does not believe that any substantive questions should be discussed. (It was also clear that the questioning journalists were dissatisfied with the secretary's answers.)

The United States is to go into the conference to prove that sending American and British troops to Lebanon and Jordan was not aggression but for the prevention of indirect aggression which must be done away with. Any further conferring, looking to a settlement, would require intensive preparation.

This suggests that the framers of United States policy have no clear idea of what is really wrong in the Arab Middle East and what is the primary cause of the popular revolts leading to what they call "indirect aggression."

For if they had any idea they would already be prepared with substantial proposals based on clear, objective analysis.

If they are not prepared now, when will they ever be?

Middle East developments have followed and will continue to follow a completely predictable pattern. This column is written by a woman of limited intelligence and knowledge who possesses only the not uncommon gift of being able to see the woods in spite of the trees.

In the Arab Middle East events have developed precisely as we have foretold they would, even before Nasser arose to ride a tide that "taken at the flood leads on to fortune."

The American government has able, trained, diplomatic envoys and intelligence agents in the Middle East. Since I am acquainted with many of them, and know what they think, have been thinking, must have reported, and possibly recommended, we wonder at this lack of preparation.

The question for any summit conference is how to check the Middle East out of the cold war. Until that is done there will continue to be indirect aggression, until a united Arab world checks itself out, unity being promoted, rebelliously or otherwise, for precisely that highly popular and thoroughly understandable purpose.

But if it is possible to obscure the simple, one can trust our complicated military and political simperons to do it.

Re the article written by Barney McKinley "Are Victoria's Motorists Above the Law" in the Aug. 9 Colonist:
I would rather drive in either Seattle or Vancouver at rush hour than I would any time in Victoria. Victoria's drivers are uneducated. I was, therefore, pleased to see your interest in this matter and I think it is time that someone taught Victoria's average driver how to drive. The law has apparently no interest in doing this.

Pandora one night and became involved with a hit-and-run fender scraper. I stopped to survey the damage to my vehicle. Meanwhile, unknown to me at the time, the vehicle behind me raced the hit-and-run driver and got his licence number. This obliging chap then returned and gave this licence number to me. I also had managed to note the number. Both our numbers agreed. This chap, who had been helpful, also volunteered to be a witness for my case.
A few blocks on into town I stopped a policeman and told him what had happened. The officer surveyed the damage (which was slight) and told me in effect that they could do nothing about it as the damage done to my vehicle was under $50. If I wanted to do anything I had to look up the chap at the motor vehicle branch and either approach him myself or see a lawyer.

Here we have an out-and-out hit-and-run driver, his licence number, and a witness, but the law won't do anything. I maintain that the chap who scraped my fender and ran would also run if he had hit and taken a life or maimed someone. I maintain further that he has broken the law and should be reprimanded for doing same.

The above illustration replies in the affirmative to Barney McKinley's question "Are Victoria's Motorists Above the Law?" What are the saner types of drivers going to do to rectify this stupid situation? They can not rely on a police force whose sole function is that of handing out parking tickets. Perhaps the Chamber of Commerce could help? I only hope that Barney McKinley's article will not be a one-issue effort and that it will lead us off into a driver education program that will make Victoria a pleasant city to drive in.

Bridge to the Mainland

I am truly surprised at public reaction to the recent announcement that two 165-car ferries would be operated between Steveston and Victoria.

In recent years ferries have been found completely unsatisfactory to handle any large volume of car traffic. In the last 20 years Golden Gate, Mackinac Straits, Okanagan Lake, and dozens of other large stretches of water have been bridged. Canso Causeway, the Tamiami Trail, and Deas Tunnel also illustrate modern means of crossing waterways where ferries were formerly used.

When the E & N railroad grant was made, residents of Vancouver Island were promised a link by bridge to the mainland via Seymour Narrows. Today we have the engineering know-how (and, according to Mr. Bennett, the money) to cross the straits in any one of a dozen places.

Think of a new freeway, for example, from Ladysmith to Steveston carrying 5,000 cars a day. Then think of two 15-knot ferries carrying 500 cars at full capacity. If we do not provide modern, fast transportation between Vancouver Island and the mainland we are forever limiting ourselves to a quiet backwater of a vigorous province.

Bogus Bonuses

I refuse to buy goods from companies that "give away" bonuses. Being able to do so, they can afford to reduce the prices, so that everyone may benefit. They are not giving away anything; all who buy their goods are providing more profit than enough to pay for the bonuses.

This has become one of the worst rackets that have become rife since wages and prices started to soar.

Drydock Prepared For Widest Client

Widest ship ever to enter the government drydock at Esquimalt, the six-month-old super-tanker, George Champion, arrives here early today for survey and repair.

The 851-foot long giant tanker, one of the three largest in the world, is undergoing her first drydocking since being launched in Japan, and it will be a tricky business.

There will be just 7½ inches clearance on either side of her bilge tank when she is in, and at another point just 25 inches clearance on each side.

Victoria Jaycees began sending samples of art from Victoria schools to similar schools overseas some two years ago. Jaycees in the R.C.N. carried the Victoria drawings to Japan and the Philippines and carried art from the two countries back to Victoria.

The program was fully explained at the national convention of Jaycees in Victoria recently and plans were made to adopt it on a regional basis. The region includes British Columbia and the Yukon territory.

Victoria Laundry Workers' Federal Union No. 1, C.L.C., opened negotiations last night with three Victoria dry cleaning plants. The union is asking a 12 per cent wage increase.

Present basic rate at New Method Laundries Ltd. and Standard Steam Laundry Ltd. is $1.01 an hour. At Economy Steam Laundry Ltd. the basic pay is 93 cents an hour and parity with the other two laundries is asked on top of the general 42 per cent increase.

One H-Bomb Attack on U.S.

160,000,000 Face Death

WASHINGTON (CP)—Some 160,000,000 persons—almost 90 per cent of the total U.S. population—could be killed in an effective hydrogen bomb attack on 150 major American cities, it was estimated in testimony made public Sunday by a Congressional subcommittee.

The estimate was contained in a survey made by the Rand Corporation, a research organization, which said an attack on 50 major cities could result in 90,000,000 deaths. Both estimates were based on attacks occurring on centres lacking adequate civil defence facilities.

The Rand survey was made public by the House military operations subcommittee along with a subcommittee report warning that the U.S. stands "in mortal danger" unless the administration and Congress act on its recommendation for a large-scale federal shelter program.

The Rand estimate based on the cities attacked receiving 30 to 60 minutes of warning, said the number of casualties in the 150-city attack could be reduced to 85,000,000 with the use of a system of fallout shelters plus evacuation of the inhabitants.

This could be cut still further to 25,000,000 with a system of blast and fallout shelters and hospital, Driver of the car was down to 5,000,000 with blast and fallout shelters coupled wood.

Dockers' Decision Delayed

Counting has been postponed today of a vote by 1,300 B.C. members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union on a wage offer.

Vote was taken Friday and results were to be known yesterday. A union official said last night, however, there had been a delay in receipt of ballots from one local on Vancouver Island, and counting would begin this morning.

A strike affecting all the province's deep-sea shipping, and directly affecting 200 waterfront workers here, would be touched off by a big rejection of the wage offer.

The union executive advised turning down the conciliation recommendation for a 10-cent-an-hour wage boost. Sought is increase of the present $2.57 an hour salary by 61 1/2 cents.

Little Anthea Fights for Life

Second Mum Lost

LONDON (UPH)—Three-year-old Anthea Lyett, unwanted daughter of a British noblewoman, lay in serious condition in an African hospital yesterday while her real and foster families discussed her future.

Anthea was one of 18 survivors of the flaming crash of a Central African Airways Viscount in Libya Saturday. The crash killed 36 persons, including Anthea's new foster mother.

All Britain was following the case of the little girl who lost two mothers within a year. She was in the British military hospital in Benghazi, Libya, with a broken arm and severe burns.

Anthea was born Marcia Miller, daughter of 37-year-old Lady Diana Miller, wife of Robert Miller, a wealthy Rhodesian.

But the British noblewoman, Lady Diana's mother—the Countess of Yarborough—told reporters "we her for adoption despite opposition from her own and her husband's family."

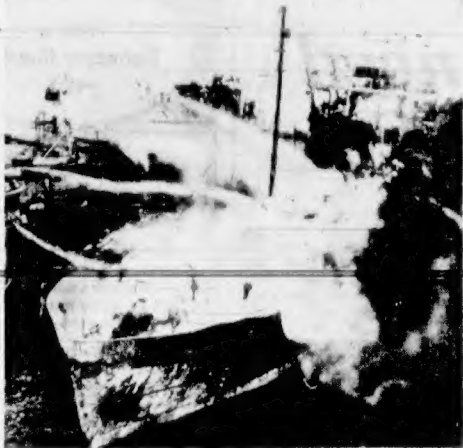

The Countess was so bitter when Lady Diana gave her daughter away she cut Lady Diana out of her will.

Belafonte Takes Honors

LONDON, AP — Paul Robeson and Harry Belafonte competed in the show business competition of the year in London tonight.

Belafonte sang the "Swanee Song" and "Someday at the Ritz" and Robeson sang "Swanee Song" and "Someday at the Ritz". A vote will be taken for the winner in five years.

These two actors made their London debut by opening a window in a London movie house.

'Rent' Arrears: 400 Years

DUNOON, Scotland — Queen Elizabeth, who was crowned with Prince Philip, was presented with a diamond necklace by the Duke of Argyll.

It was the first opportunity for the "true test" to be presented since 1963 when Mary Queen of Scots visited Dunoon.

Both sang to full houses but it was Belafonte who got the critics' plaudits. The audience gave Robeson a great welcome but the critics panned him.

The critics objected to Robeson's use of a microphone to boost his voice and his injection of politics into the program.

The News Chronicle comments that Belafonte's "racial awareness is as keen as Robeson's but it has an added quality: the great bass lacks—humor."

HOLLYWOOD — Eddie Fisher, America's perennial kid prince, was 40 years old Sunday. He celebrated his birthday with a party at his home in Hollywood.

Fisher's only daughter, who is 14, was his birthday present.

John Napier, Minister of Education, said that the government will not pay for the education of children of the Duke of Argyll.

The Duke of Argyll, who is 70, is the son of the Duke of Argyll.

Columbia Study Shelved Till Fall

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Commons' external affairs committee shelved study of the Columbia River hydro-electric tug-of-war yesterday pending completion of a joint Canadian-American engineering report.

A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, said the report should be turned in this November by the International Columbia River Engineering Board.

He said public hearings would probably be held some time in 1959.

McNaughton said the joint commission would meet in November to discuss the report.

The report will be based on the engineering study of three plans for hydro-electric development of the river.

Book Display Inspected

Some 35 future teachers swapped their classroom at Victoria College for the Victoria Public Library yesterday morning to find out just what good books are available for children of school age.

The class, led by Dr. B. F.
Jefferson, its instructor, inspected a special display of books and heard a short talk by Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin, children's librarian.

The future teachers are from all over B.C. They are attending a course held as part of Victoria

Planned Path for Moon Rocket

Diagram (top) shows relationship between the earth and its natural satellite, the moon, 220,000 miles away. The United States expects to launch first of four moon rockets on Aug. 17, when earth and moon will be closest. Rocket will be fired in spiral pattern from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to give a widening orbit that will gradually reach gravitational pull of the moon and return (bottom) to burn up in earth's atmosphere.

Will Carry Satellite

Rocket Moon-Bound in Week

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rocket carrying a satellite in its nose may be on its way to the moon within a week. Give or take a few minutes, it will need two days, 14 hours, 24 minutes to cover the distance.

That's roughly equal to a get home from work Friday night until you go back Monday morning.

The satellite will carry a mag-netometer and a remote control television camera to spy on the moon's hidden side.

If everything goes perfectly the satellite will make a series of passes around the moon. But that's a very large "if."

Roy W. Johnson, director of the U.S. defence department's advanced research projects agency and boss of the lunar probe program, told reporters prospects for attaining the off its other two authorized moon strikes on those days. The army also has been given approval for two moon rockets.

Designed with a minimum of complexity to save weight, the simplified type television camera provides a crude picture, but one capable of interpretation.

"Even if the probe should get only to within 30,000 miles of the moon it might give up some very useful pictures of the lunar surfaces," Johnson said.

Johnson said the forthcoming lunar probe will contain instruments to measure the impact of particles in outer space. There also will be temperature-measuring devices aboard.

Italian Experiments

Brain Centre May Control Sleeping, Waking Times

By THOMAS R. HENRY

WASHINGTON (NANA) —

The number of hours a person remains awake may be controlled by a "sleep centre" near the base of the brain, according to research conducted by Dr.

Cesira Batini and his associates

at the University of Pisa.

The physiologists, in a project sponsored by the Office of Scientific Research of the U.S.

Air Force, reached this conclusion after experimenting with cats.

NEAR "BRIDGE"

Although the "sleep centre" is not precisely located, the physiologists believe it to be near the bottom of the "pons," a "bridge" which connects the medulla oblongata with the higher centres of emotional and intellectual activities in the brain.

The medulla regulates automatic activities of the body, such as breathing and digestion.

In a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here, Dr. Batini stated that when the pons was severed below a certain point a state of wakefulness was produced in cats. As indicated by brain waves, the wakefulness was almost continuous, lasting more than 90 per cent of the time.

HALF THE TIME—

In cats whose brains were intact, brain waves indicating wakefulness were noted not more than half the time.

"Our data provides convincing evidence that the normal sleep-wakefulness rhythm is definitely altered by a midpontine transaction and replaced by an enduring state of vigilance," the report stated. But it also noted that "no evidence (suggests) a parallel increase in the intensity of alertness."

Dr. Batini and his associates are now trying with further cat experiments to pin down accurately the brain area involved.

They are also studying the mechanism by which sleep is prevented. This investigation, it is pointed out, may have considerable human application in diseases characterized by constant drowsiness.

Tots' Bazaar Raises $9 For Burned-Out Couple

With the $9 proceeds they bought an electric kettle which will be given Mr. and Mrs. F.

The children, all about 10 years old, sold toys and food, and ran a bingo game.

They were Jan Champion,
